The season average was 3.3M viewers with a peak episode volume of 3.6M for the finale —the highest audience for an episode of all time. O O also make it the most popular season for the Shelby clan. The averages of the previous season were 2.4M, 2.2M and 2.4M, respectively. In addition, the BBC iPlayer figures also reflect the popularity of the critically acclaimed drama. Each episode received more than 1M requests in the seven days after the broadcast. Login data also shows that almost 60% of the iPlayer audience was under 35. Created and written by Knight, and produced by Caryn Mandabach Productions and Tiger Aspect Productions for BBC Two, the series is currently available on Netflix and will return for season 5 in 2019. It also won five nominations today from the Irish Academy of Film and Television. Among them are Best Actor for Cillian Murphy, Best Director for David Caffrey, Best Supporting Actress for Charlie Murphy who just joined this year, Best Cinematography for Cathal Watters and Best Editing for Dermot Diskin. Season 4 saw the Shelseys return to Small Heath while fighting their greatest enemy of all time, the New York Mafia. Recently presenting this season were Adrien Brody, Aidan Gillen and Murphy. Charlotte Riley and Tom Hardy returned for some episodes. Knight, who has projects in a West End musical version of the series as well as a possible film, says: Peaky continues to grow not only as a TV show, but also as a cultural phenomenon. As manufacturers, we observe the creativity and invention of our fan base as closely as we watch the show. There is a great support engine behind the show around the world, even in countries where it is not officially available. The BBC has given us a free and open platform to create something that other broadcasters may not have understood. The story will go on. For executive producer Mandabach, it is extremely gratifying to realize how connected our audience is with Tommy Shelby, his family and everyone in his orbit. Although the action has been going on for nearly a hundred years, Steve has an unparalleled ability to make each character resonate as if they were alive today. Will Gould, also executive producer, says: Year after year, the best cast and crew come together to bring Steve's amazing scripts to life. It's proof to them, for Cillian and for Steve that this series goes from strength to strength in every way. And Patrick Holland, controller of BBC 2, noted that Peaky Blinders gets better and better. It's such a distinctive, brilliantly crafted, beautifully acted series that Steven Knight, the production team and exceptional cast take it to another level. It's brilliant that such a broad and younger audience love the series as much as we do on BBC Two. We can't wait for the next series!
